

Announcing MyEthics.net!

David Gleason here -- I've launched a website with a weekly newsletter, and this is Volume 1, Issue 1... away we go!

Either you signed up, expressed interest, or I put you on the list without asking (highly unethical, just for the record). If this is not for you, feel free to unsubscribe.

If you are interested, and I hope you are, please accept this invitation to learn more about how ethics offers peaceful, respectful, and pluralistic solutions to, for example, social conflict, factious teams, and environmental abuse.

Using the site, I am hoping to build a community that seeks practical, realistic solutions to today's most pressing problems, like strategies to replace political meltdown with collaboration. How do we build a new sense of shared stewardship, and replace rage and hate with listening and compassion? How do we identify common values, and build from there?

I don't pretend to have the answers, but it seems timely to explore these questions in conversation that is free of ads, monetization, and privacy invasions. Please see the site's Code of Conduct to learn about expectations for comportment. Together, collaboratively, I hope to build a dynamic community of contributors (you), all of us bringing our best selves to the table.

I hope you find it useful, welcome your feedback, and please add your voice!

MyEthics.net Values:

We seek to create opportunity, collaboration, successful individuals and companies, great products, and social stability. We foster understanding that transcends rage and cruelty. Whenever possible, we replace decay, derision, and despair with an optimistic vision of a collective future, a values-based social contract managed by effective government intent on helping people to succeed.

About the Site:

Offering thought-provoking, respectful, and moderated dialog in a welcoming space, we explore practical ethics as a personal and strategic advantage. Why? Because on all measures except excessive wealth, collaborative and ethical behaviors produce better strategy, quality, productivity, cost-effectiveness, and customer satisfaction.

Please click to see our home page, discussions, and services, in a fun, collaborative and moderated space. Here you will find thought-provoking questions, in-depth analysis, and civilized discussion on using ethics to lead your best life.
